The managers of invested capital complain that their property is in process of destruction from the demands of organized labor. The leaders of organized labor complain that their unions are in process of destruction by reason of the demands of the managers of invested capital. Either may do a great deal of harm, but neither can succeed. If property is destroyed, it will be because they destroy themselves, because they are so conducted as no longer to minister to the public welware. The salvation of each lies in their own hands. That salvation lies not in a selfish demand for their own individual interest, but in the finding out and the doing of justice.

Must Turn Quickly.

We must turn and turn quickly in the other direction. This nation cannot pay for what is not earned, it cannot respond to a centribution which has not been made, whether supposed to be of capital invested, or work performed. We must take up again the burdens of civilization. We must make of science the handmaiden of character.

"When America is engaged in this struggle no less hazardous than those crises which she has met in the past through her own efforts and through the sustaining sympathy and assistance of others, it seems almost providential that there should come to us the personification of what America and Americans should seek to be. Other crises have brought us men, there has come to us now a woman, just as we have enlied the women of the nation to a full share in its enfranchised citizenship, to MESQUITE was a "bad man's" town; and Johnny Nelson sure was careless when he showed his roll in Kane's dance hall. He was even more rash when he set out to get it back again.

Red Conners and Hopalong Cassidy blew into town about that time and messed things up some more by getting themselves arrested for a bank robbery. But trust the Bar-20 Three to get out of a scrape-and to make things lively.

This is a regular he-man story-full of good fighting and good fun. You'll "take a shine" to the Bar-20 Three.

Against the hely movement there is no power that can prevail.

The lines were drawn to-night for one of the most spirited contests of the session, scheduled for to-morrow. This will be the election of a stated clerk. The first fight is expected to come on the proposition of changing the church laws to make the office a five-year office instead of a life position. Another contest is expected over the question of whether the election
